

Handling comments in other languages

If a Cochrane Review Group (CRG) receives a comment in a language other than English the Managing Editor or the Feedback Editor should make a reasonable effort to obtain a valid translation of the comment. The CRG should publish the translated comment alongside the original language version. The translator should be acknowledged. The comment contributor should be informed that the comment has been translated and the comment then actioned.